New STRUCK Streaming Series Premieres Proof of Concept

The new streaming series “STRUCK” releases its promo trailer and introduces the filmmakers on its website, StruckTheSeries.com. The narrative series stars Cameron Arnett, Todd Denson, Benjamin Dane, and Todd Terry.

Dallas, TX – May 8, 2023 – www.StruckTheSeries.com | 3 Joy Films and 4 L Films new epic series, Struck, presents a proof of concept trailer, and both the public and distributors will get a first-look. In addition, Executive Producer Suellen Roberts, Christian filmmaking pioneers, Wes & Amanda Llewellyn, and producer/actor Benjamin Dane will be available for press interviews.

"This spectacular dramatic series tells the parallel true-life stories of the biblical Noah and the incredible Mt. Ararat expeditions by Dr. John D. Morris to find the ark. It's a thrilling undertaking," says executive producer Suellen Roberts.

Struck features Todd Denson (Will Trent, Ozark), as Dr. John D. Morris, Benjamin Dane (First Lady, Beyond The Farthest Star), as Noah, Todd Terry (Jesus Revolution, Breaking Bad), as J.B., and popular star Cameron Arnett (Overcomer, Nefarious), as Noah's nemesis, Asa. Other cast members are Katharine Franco, Kayli Hessler, Gabe Baker, and Yanis Kalnins. Helmed by executive producer, Suellen Roberts and award-winning writer/director team, Wes & Amanda Llewellyn, the episodic will intertwine the parallel narratives of two men, separated by history, who risk it all.

Through creative storytelling and state-of-the-art visuals, the viewer will experience the connection of both men who risk their lives being obedient to God's calling. We will see the humanity of each life, their relationships, an epic adventure, and the determination to sacrifice everything. For the first time, the antediluvian (pre-flood) world will be brought to life using cutting-edge advancements in visual technologies. This ambitious project is introducing its series concept to distributors and the public through the web and interviews. The series will also showcase an extensive “BTS: Behind The Science” interactive component that corresponds with each episode, explaining the actual science behind the pre-flood world of Genesis. Viewers can follow along and delve deeper into expert perspectives from archeologists, physicists, geologists, paleontologists, and other antediluvian scientists.

The foundation of the project is the true-life story of Dr. John D. Morris. A modern-day “Indiana Jones,” and a geological engineer, who completed thirteen expeditions to Mt. Ararat in search of the Ark's evidence after multiple sightings. He committed his life to finding the Ark while suffering from debilitating multiple sclerosis and being struck by lightning in 1972, during one climb. Morris recently passed away from the illness in January.

Filmmakers Suellen Roberts, Wes & Amanda Llewellyn and actor/producer Benjamin Dane are available for press interviews. Contact Annette Trucke to schedule an interview time or for more information regarding this upcoming streaming series.

Dr. John David Morris (1946 - 2023) was an American young earth creationist. He was the son of “the father of creation science,” Henry M. Morris, and served as president of the Institute for Creation Research (ICR) from the time of his father's death until 2020. Morris was a creationist author and spoke at a variety of events. Many of his presentations discussed the fossil record and its relation to evolution. He completed thirteen expeditions to Mt. Ararat in search of the Ark’s evidence. Morris had a B.S. in Civil Engineering from Virginia Tech (1969), an M.S., University of Oklahoma (1977), and a PhD, University of Oklahoma (1980) in Geological Engineering. In 1984 he joined the ICR and in 1996 he became its president. Later, he became an integral member of the ICR board of directors.
